Ze zijn overspoeld met reacties. Het cold case-team dat onderzoek doet naar het mysterie rondom het verraad van Anne Frank. Afgelopen weekend werd al bekend dat het team met behulp van big data achter de waarheid probeert te komen. Sindsdien staat de telefoon roodgloeiend en er zijn zelfs al concrete tips binnengekomen.

De eerste tips worden inmiddels nagetrokken door het cold case-team. Het idee ontstond bij filmmaker Thijs Bayens. Die had, fietsend over de Prinsengracht, de vraag hoe het nou eigenlijk zat met het verraad: 'Toen ik het even nakeek bleek al meteen dat het wel is onderzocht maar dat er nooit een duidelijk antwoord is gekomen.'

Zelfs de FBI
De onderzoeksgroep bestaat nu uit negentien specialisten uit drie verschillende landen. Historici, data-analisten, politiemensen en zelfs een voormalig prominent FBI-lid. Volgens Bayens is nog het altijd de moeite waard om te kijken wat er echt gebeurd is: 'Er zit geen verjaringstermijn op de waarheid.'

Bergen informatie
Het zoeken naar de waarheid doet het team met behulp van een enorme berg data. Die wordt op dit moment verzameld. Namen, politiearchieven, dossiers van de SS, elk brokje informatie is welkom. Robbert van Hintum is data-analist en zorgt ervoor dat er met de grote hoeveelheid data gewerkt kan worden: 'Ik zorg ervoor dat die enorme bakken data doorzoekbaar worden. Zodat we een systeem kunnen maken dat automatisch relaties gaat leggen tussen die data.'

Brieven, herinneringen en verhalen
Maar voordat het zover is, heeft het cold case team vooral behoefte aan data, veel data. Het team is ervan overtuigd dat nog lang niet alles onderzocht is: 'Dat mensen brieven hebben, of herinneringen, of verhalen. En die willen we graag horen. Sterker nog, de afgelopen dagen zijn mensen al e-mails aan het sturen met hele waardevolle informatie.'

Pas als er genoeg informatie is, kan het team echt aan de slag. Voor meer informatie kun u terecht op site van Cold Case Diary.

Een team van twintig internationale cold case-experts is bezig met opheldering van de bijna 75 jaar oude vraag: wie heeft Anne Frank verraden. "De eerste resultaten in het vooronderzoek zijn boven alle verwachtingen", zegt initiato en filmmaker Thijs Bayens tegen de NOS.

Onder leiding van oud-FBI-agent Vincent Pankoke probeer het team met behulp van speciaal ontwikkelde software alle beschikbare info aan elkaar te knopen. "Daarmee kunnen we snel verbanden leggen en bijvoorbeeld nieuwe links zoeken tussen personen", vertelt Bayens. "Ik acht de kans steeds groter dat het lukt om de zaak op te lossen."

Een goede zaak om dit grote vraagstuk in onze geschiedenis op te lossen? Of een verspilling van kennis e geld, dat beter gebruikt kan worden?

Big data onderzoeken leveren steeds vaker goede resultaten op. Dat moet ook wel, in een samenleving waar zo veel informatie digitaal beschikbaar is. Maar ook voor informatie die oorspronkelijk niet digitaal is, blijkt big data onderzoek goed te werken. Een team van cold case onderzoekers komt er door big data onderzoek mogelijk achter wie de familie van Anne Frank heeft verraden.

Wie verraadde Anne Frank en haar familie?

Het blijft een groot vraagteken: wie verraadde de Joodse familie Frank in 1944? Een voormalig FBI-agent probeert dit mysterie met een internationaal team alsnog op te lossen.

Was het Lena Hartog-van Bladeren? Tonny Ahlers? Nelly Voskuijl? Willem van Maaren? Of was het heel iemand anders? Voormalig FBI-agent Vincent Pankoke is vastberaden om de waarheid boven tafel te krijgen. Maar hoezo denkt de Amerikaan dat hij een betere kans van slagen heeft? Er is immers al veel vaker onderzoek gedaan naar de identiteit van de verrader. En altijd zonder succes. Zelfs nazi-jager Simon Wiesenthal lukte het niet om de persoon op te sporen die ervoor zorgde dat Anne Frank en de andere onderduikers in het Achterhuis op 4 augustus 1944 werden opgepakt en gedeporteerd. "Er is zo veel informatie beschikbaar uit archieven

Anne Frankot családjával együtt 25 hónap bujkálás után deportálták, miután egy máig ismeretlen személy feladta őket. A rejtély azonban hamarosan megoldódhat.

ANNE FRANK : UNE IA POUR RÉSOUDRE LE MYSTÈRE DE SON ARRESTATION ?

FRED | 7 octobre, 2017 at 11:54 0 COMMENTAIRE

Anne Frank a été arrêtée par la police allemande le 4 août 1944 et elle a ensuite été déportée dans un camp de concentration allemand, un camp où elle est morte quelques mois plus tard. Il reste encore beaucoup de zones d'ombre autour de son arrestation et un agent du FBI compte faire appel au big data et à une IA pour tenter de résoudre l'énigme.

Kdo zradil rodinu Anny Frankové? Případ má vyřešit umělá inteligence

8. října 2017, 18:19 — Autor: -lun / EuroZprávy.cz

Amsterdam – Necelý rok před koncem 2. světové války do domu Anny Frankové a její rodiny v okupovaném Amsterdamu vrazila policie, která zatkla ji i dalších sedm lidí, kteří se zde úspěšně skrývali přes dva roky. O tragickém osudu mladičké Anny Frankové se dozvídáme skrz její deník, který se stal nezkresleným symbolem výpovědí

Un agente in pensione della FBI ha proposto di riaprire il caso di Anne Frank, nel tentativo di individuare i responsabili che rivelarono il luogo del nascondiglio della famiglia Frank nel 1944.

Vince Pankoke guiderà un team di esperti forensi e ricercatori, composto da 19 membri, i quali, attraverso nuovi dati e moderne tecniche di investigazione, cercheranno di fare luce su questo caso.

L'Anne Frank House di Amsterdam si è reso disponibile nel fornire tutto il materiale necessario e Pankoke potrà usufruire anche di documenti declassificati da parte del governo statunitense.

«La maggior parte di essi sono danneggiati, oppure scritti in linguaggio tecnico militare. Ma si tratta

73 ans après l'arrestation qui conduisit les Frank à la déportation, on ignore toujours l'identité de l'indicateur qui a trahi la famille. Depuis les Pays-Bas, un ex-agent du FBI pense qu'une intelligence artificielle pourrait trouver le coupable.

Le 4 août 1944, Anne Frank et sa famille sont arrêtés par la police du Troisième Reich. Depuis deux ans, les Frank ont trouvé refuge dans un appartement aménagé dans l'entreprise d'Otto Frank, le père de famille. Trahie par un indicateur, la famille est arrêtée puis déportée.

Plus de soixante-dix ans après cet épisode tristement célèbre, l'identité de l'indicateur qui a dévoilé la cachette des Frank est toujours inconnue. Néanmoins, des enquêteurs n'ont pas abandonné l'affaire, à laquelle ils espèrent faire prendre un nouveau tournant grâce à une intelligence artificielle, « Cold Case Diary. »

UN EX-AGENT DU FBI RELANCE L'ENQUÊTE

Vincent Pankoke, un ancien agent du FBI désormais retraité, est en effet convaincu que cette technologie pourrait aider à résoudre le mystère. Avec une vingtaine de personnes — des médecins légistes et des membres de la police néerlandaise — Vincent Pankoke a créé une entreprise basée aux Pays-Bas, Xomnia.

AMSTERDAM (Reuters) - A former FBI agent is heading up a cold case team more than 70 years after Nazi occupation police stormed the secret Amsterdam canal house annex where Anne Frank was hiding and sent her to her death in a concentration camp.

Suspicions that someone betrayed the Frank family are not new, but the latest attempt will seek out new connections in the case of the Jewish girl whose diary has captivated millions of readers worldwide.

Retired agent Vincent Pankoke said he had high hopes of solving one of the biggest World War Two mysteries in the Netherlands with the help of Big Data and modern policing techniques.

"This is the ultimate cold case," Pankoke, who is heading a 20-member team working out of Amsterdam, told Reuters in an interview. "Seventy

(NEWSER) – How was Anne Frank's hiding place during the Holocaust discovered, leading to her death in the Bergen-Belsen concentration camp at age 15? It's a mystery that still has no answer, despite years of investigation by her father Otto (the only member of the family to survive the Holocaust) and multiple scholars, notes Mental Floss. Now, a former FBI agent hopes to change that by opening a cold case review

Cold Case Review Launched to Identify Who Betrayed Anne Frank

A former FBI agent, Vince Pankoke, has launched a cold case review to identify who may have betrayed Anne Frank and her family to the Gestapo in 1944. He will be working with forensic experts, historians, psychological profilers and former police detectives, using investigative techniques developed in the past decade. "There is no statute of limitation on the truth," said Pankoke. While the Anne Frank House museum published its own study in December suggesting the Frank family may have been discovered by chance, there was no conclusive evidence.

WHO BETRAYED ANNE FRANK?

The mystery has endured since the end of the war. An investigator says AI can crack it,

Toronto Star 14 Oct 2017 CLEVE R. WOOTSON JR. THE WASHINGTON POST

For nearly 75 years, some of the greatest investigative minds have tried to figure out who tipped off the Nazis about Anne Frank and the seven other Jews who were hiding behind a movable bookcase in Amsterdam.

Now, a former FBI investigator working with a production company hopes the decades-old mystery can be solved with the help of a new mind — an artificial one.

Vince Pankoke, who spent a chunk of his FBI career investigating Colombian drug cartels, has assembled a team of 20 researchers, data analysts and historians to look into what he calls "one of the biggest cold cases" of the 20th century.

The most unconventional member of his team is a piece of specialized software that can cross-reference millions of documents — police reports, lists of Nazi spies, investigative files for Frank family sympathizers — to find connections and new leads.

Proditione Media, a production company in the Netherlands, is soliciting donations to help fund Pankoke's investigation, which will become the subject of a podcast — and possibly a documentary.

Retired FBI agent Vince Pankoke is launching an investigation into who informed the Nazis that Anne Frank and her family were hiding in an Amsterdam row house in August 1944.

Using software that can organize and analyze large amounts of data, Pankoke says that he believes he can solve what he calls, "the ultimate cold case."

The research will use modern law enforcement investigative techniques. The research team is multidisciplinary, using methods of cold case detectives, historians, psychologists, profilers, data analysts, forensic scientists and criminologists.

The team uses software to organize and analyze the vast amount of data, which enables them to see connections that are not visible to the naked eye.

The Dutch National Archives, the Institute for War, Holocaust and Genocide Studies, the city of Amsterdam and the Anne Frank Foundation are making their archives available. Amsterdam-based Xomnia, which specializes in processing and analyzing large amounts of data, is providing artificial intelligence support.

Research Team Tries To Solve Mystery Of Who Turned In Anne Frank's Family

From the frightful day in 1944 when the Jewish Frank family was discovered hiding from the SS in a secret section of Otto Frank's store in Amsterdam, there has been a mystery surrounding who had turned in the family to the Nazis. Now, a team of 20 researchers lead by ex-FBI agent Vince Pankoke believes that the mystery can be solved by the 75th anniversary of the Frank family's arrest using artificial intelligence.

Since the popularization of the Frank family's tragedy as described in Anne Frank's posthumously published diary, many amateur and academic theories have been considered regarding the identity of those responsible for sending the family to their deaths in Nazi concentration camps. These theories have, however, been fundamentally limited by a lack of evidence due to the destruction of records by a British air raid in 1944.

Pankoke believes that his team, crowdfunded with the help of prominent media figures Thijs Bayens and Pieter Van Twisk, will be able to resolve the matter. He reportedly discovered

Early last week, the Guardian published an article regarding the recent re-opening of an infamous cold case over seventy years in the making. Anne Frank, a name recognized around the world, recorded her family's years of hiding during the Holocaust, along with her remarkable insight into the nature of man during wartime. In 1944, Annelies Marie Frank and her family were arrested by

Inteligência artificial tenta descobrir quem traiu Anne Frank

Anne Frank é uma das mais conhecidas vítimas do Holocausto conduzido pela Alemanha Nazista durante os anos 30 e 40. Um das partes mais intrigantes de sua história envolve justamente a sua captura, em agosto de 1944, quando a Gestapo descobriu o esconderijo onde ela e a sua família estavam abrigadas em Amsterdã, Holanda.

EX-AGENTE DO FBI USA INTELIGÊNCIA ARTIFICIAL PARA ENCONTRAR TRAIDOR DE ANNE FRANK

O cineasta Thijs Bayens em frente à casa de Anne Frank, em Amsterdã

Após a invasão da Holanda pelas forças nazistas, Anne Frank e sua irmã, Margot, e os pais, Otto e Edith, se refugiaram com outras quatro pessoas judias num esconderijo secreto atrás de uma estante de livros na loja da família, em Amsterdã. Por dois anos o grupo conseguiu se manter escondido, com a ajuda de quatro funcionários do estabelecimento, mas, em 04 de agosto de 1944, foi descoberto. Agora, após pouco mais de sete décadas, Vince Pankoke, ex-agente do FBI, pretende reabrir o caso para identificar o traidor que forneceu a localização do esconderijo aos nazistas. Para analisar milhares de documentos, ele conta com a ajuda de um sistema de inteligência artificial.

O projeto está sendo liderado pela produtora holandesa Proditione Media, que lançou uma campanha de financiamento coletivo para bancar o estudo, que será transformada num documentário. Com experiência na investigação de cartéis de drogas colombianos, Pankoke foi contratado para liderar a equipe de 20 pesquisadores, historiadores e analistas de dados.
