Hi [redacted]

Thank you for updating the doc today—must appreciated from me! I also forwarded next week's calls to you. It would be great, as Amsterdam was key in developing this charter, if you could attend both calls.

Thank you,

Hi [redacted]

Thank you for providing your input to me directly. I am asking all input to be commented directly to the Google doc that way there is transparency to all where the feedback is coming from. If you are unable to log in to Google so that your name appears as the commenter, please add a note saying the comments are from you.

[redacted] announced on his last call that he was leaving Uber. [redacted] has replaced him as a member of the Global Future Council.

Will you be joining next week's call for the charter?

I will reply to your other inquiries under separate cover.

Thank you,

Hi [redacted] how are you? Attached you find our input for the charter.

As our Deputy Mayor will be in New York for the summit, we are also trying to arrange some meetings with other organizations. I have been trying to contact [redacted] to set up a meeting with Uber in New York, but every time I send it, I receive a message saying the delivery of the e-mail has failed. Do you know how I can get in touch with him?

I was also wondering if you already know more about the programme of the summit? If there is time left a part from the summit on the 23rd en 24th of September, we would like to use this time to plan other meetings.

[redacted] is on vacation until the 23rd of august. You can contact me for any questions regarding the charter.

Thank you in advance!

Dear workstream members,

As a reminder, we are collecting feedback on the Charter through 26 July. During the week of 29 July, I will review the feedback collected to determine a useful structure for a call and identify key parts of the charter that will need extended further discussion. We will host two calls on 5 and 6 August to discuss as a group and align on next steps.

Charter for your review: [redacted]

- When making edits, please use Google doc's suggestion feature. If you are not signed in to a Google account, please sign your suggestions and comments.
- If you are unable to access Google docs, please let me know. Suggestions and comments are preferred to be channelled through Google docs to maintain transparency to the rest of the workstream.

I will be out of office 22-26 July returning on 29 July. If you would like to connect in advance of the larger feedback calls, please let me know and we can schedule something for the week of 29 July. As I review the feedback the week of 29 July, I may reach out to you to clarify points and brainstorm how we should discuss this as a group.

Thank you,

Dear workstream members,

Thank you for those who were able to join the call to discuss the latest version of the draft.

From now until, 26 July, we will be collecting feedback on the Charter. We will host a call 31 July (TBC) to review the feedback received and discuss any points requiring additional debate. We will seek to publish the Charter via WEF channels on in mid-September.

Charter for your review: [redacted]

- When making edits, please use Google doc's suggestion feature. If you are not signed in to a Google account, please sign your suggestions and comments.
- If you are unable to access Google docs, please let me know. Suggestions and comments are preferred to be channelled through Google docs to maintain transparency to the rest of the workstream.

Key questions to consider when reviewing the Charter

- We agreed in Dubai that a Charter should exist to help cities and new mobility service providers collaborate. In so doing, how well does the Charter distinguish itself as the practical application of the Shared Mobility Principles? Is there a way this can be strengthened?
- Do the 8 practices cover everything? Should they be expanded?
- The Charter includes Terms of Engagement for how cities and mobility partners should collaborate on a basic level (have a contact person, have a way to communicate new innovations in the field). Do you agree with the purpose of this section? If yes, are there other terms you would suggest adding? If no, why?
- Are there other key stakeholders outside of the GFC on Mobility who we should be getting feedback from?

Timeline

- 26 July: All feedback due on v2 of the Charter
- 31 July (TBC): Workstream call to review feedback to Charter

- 9 August: [redacted] to circulate v3 of Charter for final review by the workstream
- 23 August: All feedback due on v3 of the Charter
- 30 August: [redacted] delivers Charter to WEF editing team
- Mid September: Charter is published via WEF platform

Other outputs related to the Charter

- [redacted]
    - During the Forum's event (targeted participants are CEOs/high level figures), the mobility team will host a workshop "Preparing Cities for Mobility Innovations of the Future"
    - The workshop will incorporate the Charter and true cost pricing work. I am interested to hear your feedback on what outcomes from this workshop would be helpful to the progress of the charter. Perhaps this could be a testing ground for the success of the Charter or an opportunity to brainstorm a potential next phase for this workstream in the lead up to AMGFC19.

Dear workstream members,

We look forward to speaking with you tomorrow for the City Mobility Charter workstream call. During this call, we will review updates to the Charter (including what is included, why it was include and how it is framed). Following the call, we invite you to review the document over the next few weeks to provide feedback and comments. At that time we will review again and make final adjustments. We are seeking a September publication (at the latest) via the WEF platform.

Dear workstream members,

My apologies for the delay since you have last heard from me. In addition to concentrating some time on the other workstreams (the challenge and true cost pricing paper), we have been working to revamp the Charter from its previous iteration. Since it is often easiest to provide critique and feedback, we are working on a document to share with you at the end of this month rather than endeavouring to write something from scratch on large calls. At the end of next week, I will be in touch with a draft of the Charter. The following week, we will host a call to review the charter. During this call, it will be especially important to verify that the charter works for BOTH cities and the private sector—we will welcome candid critique to get us there.

Next call:

- 2 July, 10:45-11:45

Agenda:

- Review of Charter outline
- Review of Charter principles
- Review of Charter terms of engagement

If you have any questions or have free time to get more involved in the next week, let me know!

Thank you,

Dear workstream members,

Apologies for the last minute notification; however, we would like to host a City Mobility Charter workstream call on 9 May at 10am EST. Since our last call, we have made several updates to the charter and look forward to discussing next steps with you.

Agenda

- Introductions
- Review last meeting
- Discussion of methodology
- Discussion of timeline
- Review of principles
    - Division of principles among workstream for development

Notes and key documents

- To review notes from the last meeting, the proposed methodology and proposed timeline, please refer to the [redacted] google doc. Thank you to [redacted] and [redacted] for the behind-the-scenes assistance.
- To review the latest iteration of the Charter, please refer to the [redacted] google doc. Thank you to [redacted] for making modifications based on the feedback of the last call.
    - Following [redacted]/Amsterdam's recent iteration of the charter, [redacted] [redacted] and I reviewed each principle to modify sentence structure and provide greater clarity on the intention of the principles. During the later half of the call, we will confirm the principles and determine if further clarification, modification or editing is needed. Should you have time before the call, please review the document and provide your suggestions.

Subject: WEF GFC on Mobility | City Mobility Charter

Dear Workstream members,

We will be hosting a "city mobility charter" workstream call on 10 April 10am EST. My apologies for the very short notice. This will be the first workstream call, and we will intend to have regular calls ever three weeks.

The purpose of the meeting will be to conduct initial planning for the City Mobility Charter workstream. The City of Amsterdam has done some preliminary work drafting an outline of the charter based on their experiences with new mobility players in their city. To facilitate a productive call, we ask you to complete the following action (should take no more than 10 minutes).

ACTION

- Prior to the call, please review the draft outline of the charter [redacted] put together by the City of Amsterdam (about 10 min)
- Please provide comment/ feedback regarding the charter's outline—What is missing?
- Please comment directly on the file or email the comments to me. Directions for commenting in the document below.

Key Links

Agenda

- Introduction/update (5 min)
- Confirmation of problem statement (10 min)
    - How might cities and companies work together to provide innovative and efficient mobility options that increase the safety, sustainability and inclusivity of urban transportation? (see Overview document)
- Review feedback on charter (15 min)
    - What's missing?
    - Who is the audience?
    - What is the context?
- Brainstorm methodology (15 min)
    - How do we develop the charter?
- Generate timeline (5 min)
    - Targeting September
    - May/June/July event plug-in?
- Housekeeping (5 min)
    - Overview document finalization
    - Timeline planning
    - Resource pledge
        - Based on the conversations in the call, I expect clear next steps/deliverables to come up. Please be ready to raise your hand to move these forward.
