Dear [redacted]

We need some more time for the iteration. I will send it to you by the beginning of next week. I will come back to you on the availability of [redacted] for the two calls on Monday. Her schedule is very full and I have to check something with our secretary. Sorry for any inconvenience.

Kind regards,

Dear [redacted]

Thank you for your note. I am looking forward to receiving the next iteration tomorrow. If there are any immediate questions, I will ask you—otherwise, I can hold my inquires until when [redacted] returns.

Calls to schedule

- 8 or 9 April: Call with Amsterdam team, [redacted] from Singapore's LTA and [redacted]
  - Will you please share your availability for a call?
  - Will you please indicate who from your side would join the call?
- 9 or 10 April: schedule a call with the full workstream
  - Will you please share your availability for a call in the afternoon CET? This call will need to be at a time suitable for Singapore and San Francisco.

Thank you,

[redacted]

Hi [redacted]
I will send you next iteration by the end of this week. [redacted] is in the lead as program manager, so she might prefer to review it with you herself. If you have any questions to clarify the content of the next iteration, you can contact me and I will see if either I can answer it or will check with one of my colleagues. [redacted] asked me to schedule a meeting with [redacted] someone from Singapore and with you. She will be back as of the 8th of April. Is it possible to schedule the meeting in that week? Maybe we can schedule a meeting for the two of you to review the iteration before the other meeting?

Thank you in advance!

Met vriendelijke groet,

Hi [redacted]

I spoke with [redacted] on Friday afternoon to discuss the content of the charter and next steps. On the call, [redacted] advised that you will be sharing the next iteration of the charter this week. When should I expect to receive it? Should we set up a time to review together?

Many thanks,

[redacted]

Dear [redacted] and [redacted]

How are you?
As discussed earlier with [redacted] and Sharon about the City Mobility Charter I have made a concept (see attachment). This charter consist of three elements:

1. Content of the Charter
   a. Principles
      What are the important guidelines for all parties

   b. Role cities
      How can cities help with terms and conditions etc

   c. Role Mobility organisations
      How can private parties play a role

   d. Criteria public private projects
      How are we going to work together in a ecosystem

2. Roundtable discussion
   The coming period we would like to involve the workgroep members to work on the content of the charter and work on the common ground.
   What do you think you we can do this and with who?

3. Output to be shared and showcased
   I think it is interesting that Sharon can pitch and share her first thoughts on the charter during some events in May - July before she presents it on September al the WEF in New York.
   What do you think?

I also would like to inform you about the developments with Uber.
Since last week we started with a taskforce (participants: municipality of Amsterdam, Uber, ministry of Infrastructure en Water) to work together on an agreement which contains the topics:

- Traffic safety
- Good employment
- Sharing data and insights on the trip information for the city
- Sustainability

The talks with Uber are constructive so far. We aim to sign the mobility charter before this summer.

These outcomes are also relevant for the mobility charter.

Furthermore we aim at a sort of bleu print social charter for other existing or new platforms.

Looking forward to your reaction.

Kind regards,
