According to sources, police intelligence said:

- Scores of extreme Maccabi fans with a past history of violence and shouting “racist taunts” were expected to travel to the Birmingham game.
- Dutch police told their British counterparts that the Maccabi fans had instigated trouble in Amsterdam at a game last year.
- They had randomly picked Muslims in Amsterdam to attack. That led to reprisal violence with some Dutch Jews attacked.
- A huge Dutch police effort, involving 5,000 officers across three days was needed to quell the trouble.
